NO. 11

Illinois Assured of Many New Roads in 1925

Gov. Small Plans to Have Best Paved State in the Country

On the face of incomplete returns, it appears that the $100,000,000 State Road Bond Issue has passed with a majority on the proposition of over one million, and a constitutional majority of approximately 250,000. A few days will be required to determine the final vote. Colonel C. R. Miller, director of the department of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, in commenting on the present highway situation, made the following statement:

"The passage of this measure will insure that Illinois will continue to construct highways at the same world's record breaking rate which has enabled the state to surpass all highway construction records for each of the past three years. During 1924, Illinois will complete approximately 1200 miles, which is more than double the mileage built by any other state, and it is entirely probable that our state will build approximately 1500 miles during the year 1925. Had the bond issue failed, it would have been necessary to reduce this program to approximately 185 miles. It has, for the past few years, been the custom of the division of highways to receive bids and award contracts during the fall and winter months in order that the contractors might set up their plants, store materials during the spring months, and thus enabled to take advantage of every good working day. Anticipating the passage of the bond issue, and desiring to waste as little time as possible, Governor Small authorized the department of public work and building to advertise some 621 miles of bond issue roads, the bids to be received conditional upon the passage of the proposed bond issue. Inasmuch as the bond issue seems to be safely carried, the department will receive bids for road work on Nov. 12th, Nov. 26th and Dec. 17th. No awards, of course, can be made until final returns are complete. Under the terms of the new law, the original road system contemplated under the $60,000,000 bond issue shall be placed under contract before work is undertaken on the new routes. The only exception to this is where engineering conditions make it clearly impracticable to let final paving contracts on account of heavy grading, large bridge work, or similar conditions. The new bond issue law carries with it an appropriation of the amount to be derived from the bonds and this appropriation will not expire until June 30th, 1925. This makes it possible for the department to let additional contract obligating this new appropriation. The new law further provides that no bonds can be sold until the money is actually needed for construction. It may be remembered that the last of the $60,000,000 bond issue was not sold until just a few months ago and the balance of that fund has only recently been expended. Pursuing this same course, the sale of the $100,000,000 bond issue will be arranged in small blocks of bonds which will be sold at such times as contract obligations may require the funds, thus avoiding unnecessary payment of interest."

Governor Small, in commenting on the road situation, said:

"I am very much gratified at the confidence which our people have expressed in our highway program by ratifying the $100,000,000 bond issue law with a majority of over one million on the proposition, on the face of incomplete returns. Such an expression is the best testimonial that our highway work has been administered in accordance with sound, economic principles, demanding a dollar's worth of value for every dollar expended, and that the highways which have been completed have demonstrated their stability and service value. I shall continue to push our state highway program as rapidly as possible, and am confident that we will be able to surpass our past records and during the next four years I am confident that Illinois can be made the best paved state in the Union."

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, November 10, 1904

G. DeWitt Stanton returned Sunday from Doniphan, Mo., he expects to move his family to that place in the near future.

Mrs. H. Riggs and sister, Miss Effie Harden of Lafayette, Ind., are visiting Antioch relatives and friends this week.

Morris Sabin of Washington, D. C., was in town Friday and Saturday of last week, having stopped here on his way to Whitewater, Wis., where he will cast his vote.

On Monday of this week work was commenced on the branch line of the Wisconsin Central railroad. The branch leaves the main road at the Hancock farm and will follow the state line westward, entering Wisconsin at the Longman farm, and on to Wilmet, touching the gravel pit near that place. The right of way for this route has been recently purchased by the Wisconsin Central company. It is thought that this branch will eventually be continued to Lake Geneva and Portage and on, thus making a shorter route to St. Paul.

The firm of Whitehead & Shultis, who have run a meat market here for a number of years, have sold out their interests to Thomas Brompton and Roll Shultis, who will conduct the business at the same place under the firm name of Brompton & Shultis.

"AN OLD FASHIONED MOTHER" AT HIGH SCHOOL TUESDAY

At the High School next Tuesday night the Antioch Grade school will sponsor "An Old Fashioned Mother," to be presented by the Grace Luther League of Woodstock. The show was presented at that town recently and is reported as being one of the best home talent plays ever given there.

The cast is excellent, every person the best for his or her part. Deborah Underhill, a mother in Israel, played by Miss Marion Wienke, is the ideal mother of a few years ago. Miss Wienke truly lives her part; she expresses the thoughts and cares of a mother in every action. Deborah Underhill has two sons, John, the younger, and Charley, who live with her on the farm; but Charley (Lester Liddell) falls in love with the village belle, Isabel Simpson (Florence Beck). Miss Simpson is the snobbish society belle who will not work and who detests the familiarity of servants. Charley marries the belle and this is the beginning of Charley's perplexities. John, the younger son, (Carl Moritz) is the black sheep of the family. He turns out to be the prodigal son, but he has seen two years of jail life before this, for a crime he was innocent of.

The first act opens with a scene in a settler's room at the Underhill farmhouse, on a late afternoon in March. The village choir is having a rehearsal. Whither Bill Plindle (Bessie Wienke) is lending and the choir sways back and forth as the Whither gracefully waves her baton. Clarence Foote sings between puffs from a pipe that smokes so conveniently bottom side up. Miss Lowly Loviny Castard, the plain sewing and gossip expert (Alice White), calls on the choir and gives them a new song of her own composition. Miss Castard has a jolly heart, but it burdens easily when Brother John Quackenbush proposes to her when he learns she is an heiress, and—well you can see the rest of the show yourself Tuesday night, and you'll enjoy every minute of it.

FINAL FIGURES IN COUNTY VOTE ARE RECEIVED

The total vote for the county was 27,039.

McHenry Wins Football Game By 18-7 Score

Antioch Township High school football team met defeat at the hands of McHenry high school last Saturday by a score of 18 to 7.

The McHenry team took the local boys off their feet the first quarter in a brand of open game that has not been seen in this section for some time, and before Antioch could set for a defense, the McHenry players had scored two touchdowns.

In the third period Antioch put over a touchdown after two successful forward passes and line plunging by Simpson, Hook and Zwenk.

In the fourth period McHenry again dazzled the high school boys with a wide end run with the runner behind a strong interference and succeeded in scoring another touchdown from this play. In this period Antioch rushed the ball to McHenry's 2-yard line, only to lose the ball on downs.

Antioch had the better team, but were taken off their feet with the change of plays sprung on them by the McHenry team. Capt. Hook, Simpson Zwenk and Hattendorf all played a wonderful game.

The game scheduled with Barrington for last Tuesday was called off on account of rain and another date will be announced later.

In Rare Tribute to Red Cross, Coolidge Urges Membership

Washington, D. C.—Urging "universal acceptance of the invitation to join" in the annual Red Cross roll call President Coolidge, as head of the organization, made public through its headquarters here the following letter, addressed to all the people:

"The American Red Cross has become an intimate part of our national life. Under its congressional charter it is a semi-official agent of the government, but it belongs nevertheless to the people. It is the instrument of the people in giving expression to the lofty, unselfish humanitarianism, the practical idealism, characteristic of this nation from its humble beginnings.

"The American Red Cross has been tested in war and the aftermath of war; in fire, flood and famine, and in the emergencies of peace. It has been proved an indispensable instrument for the alleviation of suffering and betterment of human life in our own and other lands.

"We should make unmistakably clear our faith in this instrument we have created for rendering service. As individuals it is our duty and privilege to be a part of this organization.

"Yearly, from Armistice day to Thanksgiving day, the American Red Cross invites all the people to enter its ranks. It enrolls them for service.

"As President of the United States and as president of the American Red Cross, I urge universal acceptance of the invitation to join. The Red Cross needs and should have your generous support. Let its good works become your good works."

"Advance reports of the enrollment organization throughout the country," a Red Cross statement said, "indicate that the 1924 roll call total of more than 3,300,000 members will be exceeded in this year's campaign."

News Notes Taken From Other Papers

News from Entire County in Condensed Form

Walter Lindstedt, 25, of 2320 Ravenswood avenue, Chicago, a police sergeant, was drowned Sunday morning in Bang's lake, near Wauconda, and E. J. Zapel, 25, of 3239 Otto avenue, Chicago, was saved by two hunters, when they were forced to leap into the lake when their boat started to sink. Both had been hunting ducks.

Lindstedt's body was found 500 feet from the shore in 9 feet of water. It was brought to the surface with grappling hooks about five hours after he had drowned.

Lindstedt and Zapel had taken a boat to hunt ducks. The waves were high and were washing over the gunwale. Gradually it began to sink and both men were forced to leap into the lake in an effort to save themselves.

Lindstedt grew cold in the water and lost his hold on the boat, while a party of Chicago hunters were able to save Zapel, who was chilled through from the water. Dr. Ross of Wauconda administered first aid to him.

A verdict of death from accidental drowning was brought by the coroner's jury.

Joe Ryan, 55, a hobo without an address, was found dead in a bum's camp in a woods near the north end of Highwood Sunday morning by Chief of Police Llewellyn of Highwood.

Tommy Ryan, another hobo, who had been drinking with the deceased, notified the chief that he had located a dead man in the woods. He denied that he was a relative of Joe Ryan.

In all there were seven hoboes in the woods who had been drinking with Ryan. All of them were taken to the Highwood police station, and later used as witnesses at an inquest held by Coroner J. L. Taylor of Libertyville. A verdict of death from alcoholic poisoning was returned.

Joseph Soback, 40, of 717 Broadway, Libertyville, was found dead in the bedroom of his cottage early Sunday morning by two laborers, who were employed with him on construction at St. Mary's of the Lake.

His cottage is located just outside the village limits, and the body was found fully clothed and stretched on the floor. Nothing in his pockets had been disturbed. Coroner J. L. Taylor, however, will investigate the death cause thoroughly. He was the first person to be notified of the death, and is said to have made a personal investigation of the body and cottage without finding anything that would indicate foul play.

Soback was described as a temperate man, industrious and saving by his fellow laborers. It was said that he was trying to save enough money to bring his wife and two children to this country from their home in Poland.

Lake county's dairy population is increasing, according to figures announced by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The statement covers an area embracing approximately one-eighth of the state in this section, and is believed to hold true for the county proper.

A 6.1 percent gain in the number of dairy cows two years old and over is noted for the district over the preceding year, while the increase for the state as a whole was 6.3 percent as compared with 1923. The entire United States shows an increase amounting to 6 percent, government figures show.

Antioch "Ag" Boys to Broadcast From K. Y. W.

The Agricultural Club Octet has been asked to give two selections as their part in the Father and Son Banquet which is to be broadcast from Station K. Y. W., Chicago on Nov. 14, at 8:00 p. m.

The program, which is scheduled to last fifty minutes, is made up of selections, talks and addresses by representatives of the various Vocational Agricultural Department of Illinois.

The local agricultural department has maintained an octet for the past two years. This year's positions were filled by the following: Joseph Bernolfo, Harold Britton, Emil Hall-was, Clifford Hook, Adelbert Miller, William Musch, Leslie Palmer and Donald Westerfield.

The boys are under the leadership of Miss Bauck and Mr. Stark, who are to accompany them together with Mr. Kutil to Chicago.

Local radio fans are advised to tune in on Friday night. It may be wise for those who have radios to invite those who have not and want to hear their local boys on the night air.

Coroner Taylor to Investigate Area Death

Coroner J. L. Taylor of Libertyville is investigating the death Sunday of Mrs. Walter Stark of Area, wife of the former deputy sheriff, Walter Stark.

The woman, who was 31 years old, was found lying dead Sunday morning on a lounge in the library of her home at Area. Stark had been on a trip to Wisconsin Saturday and had not yet reached home. He was in Waukegan when notified that his wife had been found dead.

The young son of the family, Buddy, 4 years old, who was adjudged the most perfect baby in the contest conducted at the Libertyville fair this year, made his way from the sleeping quarters above the living rooms at 7 o'clock. He went to greet his mother downstairs.

In the library he found his mother lying on the lounge. With his little hands he sought to arouse her and not being able he ran frightened to his older brother, Roy, 11 years old, who was still upstairs. The latter, unable to arouse his mother, notified the nearest neighbor, H. D. Cook. It was found that the woman was dead. She had sent the children to bed at 10 o'clock Saturday night and had remained on the lounge where she was found dead.

Stark rushed to Area when notified of the death. He scouted possibilities that there may have been any unnatural causes in the death. Dr. Taylor summoned to the home held a preliminary examination yesterday and took the contents of the woman's stomach to Chicago for analysis. He is endeavoring to ascertain the exact cause of death. It was said at the home today that the possible cause to death was hemorrhage of the stomach. The woman had been ailing for some time, Stark said.

Stark resigned his position as deputy sheriff last Friday when it was reported that there had been friction between himself and Sheriff Ahlstrom.

Poultry Show Dates Are Set for Jan. 16-17

High School Auditorium to Be Scene of First Exhibition

A two weeks short course for poultrymen, farmers and boys has been set for Jan. 5th to Jan. 17.

At a special meeting of the Antioch Poultry Association Friday, Nov. 7th held at the High School, the dates of Jan. 16 and 17 had been set for the First Annual Poultry Show. This show, which is to be held at the High School auditorium, promises to be a great affair educationally. Much enthusiasm is being exhibited and a large entry of birds is anticipated.

As soon as the finance committee can arrive at the amount of premium money that is to be given, the awards committee is to publish a premium list that should prove rather interesting to breeders of poultry in this locality. The boys of the Antioch High School Agricultural club offer $25.00 in premiums; the Antioch Business club offers $25.00 in premiums; the Antioch Poultry Association itself will make up the balance of the necessary premiums. Several dealers and merchants and educational institutions have also subscribed to increase the premiums. Within the next three weeks, it is hoped that a premium list will be gotten out. Anyone interested, please write to Jensen, secretary.

The short course to be held Jan. 5, to 17 will prove of great benefit to the members when exhibiting their birds, as much can be learned about showing besides the regular course on poultry management.

Royal Neighbors in Contest Celebration

Sixty-three sedan matrons of Antioch, members of the Royal Neighbors, gathered Tuesday night in the hall to enjoy the feast provided by the losers in an attendance contest just completed. Not satisfied with the joy of the winners of the conquest, all members entered into ecstasy of terpsichorean outbreak that has not been rivaled in Antioch for some time.

To see the wife of one of our prominent haberdashers, armed with a bed post, assuming the antics of a drum major, together with an exhibition in gyration and evolutions that Gilda Gay in her palmist days would envy, would shock our respectable business men into action, but not the ladies. Accompanied by a member of one of our oldest and most respected families with a big bass drum and a conglomeration of other noise making instruments, our respected fair members entered into a mock parade, the like of which has not been seen. If the husbands of some of the participants of this affair could have seen the costumes and antics of their better halves we are afraid the attendance record would be materially decreased.

It might be fitting to state that the perpetrators and participants of this hilarious event finally settled down to "500", the winners of the prizes being Mrs. Grace, Mrs. H. Osmond and Mrs. George Kuhaupt consolation, and winners in bunco, Mrs. Emma Bartlett, Mrs. Wertz and Mrs. Walmsce. A very nice solo was rendered by Mrs. Kate Dibble. The hall was very beautifully decorated for the occasion, and a splendid chop suey supper was served.

Poker Face and a White Pigeon.

Mrs. Simpson had made a discovery. It was epoch-making. It was tremendous. Nothing short of that! So, at the very least, Mrs. Simpson was prepared to maintain stoutly in the face of possible ridicule.

One morning, very early, Mrs. Simpson, from the thick curtains of the living room, saw Jose "prowling around suspiciously like in the courtyard." She had sensed Jose's dislike, and thrilled at the sight. She always thrilled to Jose. The half-breed had gone so silently, "sneaking-like," by Judith's outer door. He had paused there, listening. He had gone back to the courtyard, hesitating, pretending that he was looking at the roses! Such a race on the part of so black-hearted a villain inspired in the scarcely breathing Mrs. Simpson a vast disgust. As if he could fool her like that, pottering around among the roses.

She, too, sought to move silently in his wake, though under her ample weight the veranda creaked audibly. Still, making less noise than usual, she peered through the lilacs. She saw Jose at the base of the knoll, gazing swiftly toward the stables. She saw another man who, evidently, was a third of the "gang," and who, of course, had risen early to creep out of the men's bunkhouse before the others were awake, to meet Jose.

Screening herself behind the lilacs, her heart throbbing as it had not done for many a long year, she watched.

Jose and the other man did not meet. Jose stopped. The two exchanged a few words too low for Mrs. Simpson to hear at that distance, but she made out that the other man had something in his hand, something white. A pigeon! For suddenly released, it fluttered out of the man's hands and, circling high above Mrs. Simpson's head, flew to join the other birds cooing on the house-top!

"A carrier-pigeon!" gasped Mrs. Simpson. "Taking a message to the other endroths?"

From that instant there was no doubt in her mind. This fitted in too well with her many suspicions not to be the clew she had sought long and unceasingly.

Jose went on, the man from the bunkhouse went back to it, and Mrs. Simpson fled to the house and listened excitedly to Judith's room. Judith, rudely awakened, came hurriedly to her door in her dressing-gown, her eyes heavy with sleep. When she heard, she laughed.

"You dear old goose!" cried Judith joyously. "I just love you to death. You put fresh interest into life."

Despite Mrs. Simpson's earnest protests, Judith hugged her and pushed her out again, saying that since she was awake now she would want her breakfast just as soon as she could get it. The housekeeper shook her head and retreated heavily.

"You've got to show some folks a man cutting their throats," she muttered to herself, "before they'll believe it. It is a carrier-pigeon and I know it. And that Black Spanish—ugh! He makes my blood curdle, just to look at him!"

"Carrier-pigeons!" laughed Judith, as she began a hurried dressing. "The dear old goose! And poor old Jose. She'll get something on him yet. I wonder why she—"

Suddenly Judith broke off. She was standing in front of a tall mirror, still only half-dressed. As she looked into the bright face of the smiling girl in the glass, a sudden change came. Pigeons! Doc Tripp had said that Trevers had got them; had remarked on the incongruity of a man like Trevers caring for little cooing birds. It was rather odd, Carrier-pigeons—carrier—

Judith whipped on her dressing gown again and, slipperless, her warm, bare feet put-patting upon the cold surfaces of the polished floors, she ran to the office.

"Send Jose to me," she called to Mrs. Simpson. "In the office. I want him immediately."

A warm glow came into Mrs. Simpson's breast. With a big kitchen poker behind her broad back, she hastened out to call Jose, Judith, at the telephone, called Doc Tripp.

"Come up immediately," she commanded, "prepared to make a test for hog-cholera germs, Doc. No, I am not sure of anything, but I think I begin to see where it came from and how. Hurry, will you?"

To Jose she said abruptly: "Go down to the men's quarters. Jose. Tell Carson and Lee to come right up." And as Jose turned to go, she added carelessly: "Seen any of the men yet?"

"Si, senorita," answered Jose. "Poker Face is up."

"Poker Face? All right, Jose. The others will be about, then."

Jose took little more time for his errand than for his elaborate bow. Carson and Lee came promptly. Carson a score of steps in advance, for Lee had hurried just long enough to wash his face and brush his hair; Carson had not.

"Tell me," demanded Judith, looking at her gentleman with intent eagerness, "what do you know about Poker Face?"

"One of the best men I've got," answered Carson heartily.

"Square, you think?"

"Yes. If I didn't think so he'd have been on his way a long time ago."

"How long has he been here? Who took him on?"

"Trevers hired him. About the same time he hired me."

Bud Lee, entering then, wondered what new thing was afoot. He glanced down and saw a bare foot peeping out from the hem of Judith's heavy red robe; he saw the hair tumbled in a glorious brown confusion over her shoulders. She was amazingly pretty this way.

"I want you two men to just stick around until I send for you again," said Judith, her eyes upon Carson alone, a little pink, naked foot suddenly withdrawn and tucked somewhere under her in her chair. "And keep your eyes on Poker Face. Keep him here, too, Carson. By the way, did any of you boys come in late last night? Or early this morning?"

"Why, no," answered Carson slowly. "An' yes. None of the regular boys, but a man from down the river, looking for a job. Heard we was short-handed. Blew in early. Just got in a few moments ago, Poker Face said."

Quick new interest flew into Judith's eyes.

"Keep him here, too," she cried. "And I'll give you something to do while you wait; bring me all the pigeons you can get your hands on—white ones. Shoot them if you have to. And be careful you don't rub the dust off their feet."

Carson's eyes went swiftly to Bud Lee's. In Carson's mind there was a quick suspicion: The strain of life on the ranch was proving too much for the girl, after all.

Judith, reading his thought, turned up her nose at him and, seeking to keep her feet hidden as she walked by sagging a little at the knees, went to the door. Turning there, she saw in Lee's eyes the hint of a smile, a very approving, admiring smile.

"Impudent!" she cried within herself. Looking very shy, her knees bent so that her robe might sweep the floor, she continued with all possible dignity to the hallway. Once there, she ran for her room, her gown fluttering wildly about her. In her room, though she dressed hurriedly, she still took time for a long and critical examination of two rows of little pink toes.

"Just the same," she said to the flushed Judith in the mirror, "they are very nice feet—Bud Lee, I'd just like to make you squirm one of these days. You're altogether too—oh, scot, Judy. What's the matter with you?"

In less than half an hour Doc Tripp, showing every sign of a hurried toilet, rode into the courtyard. He came swiftly into the office, bag in hand, Judith, waiting impatiently for him, lost no words in telling him her suspicions. And Doc Tripp, hearing her out, swore softly and fluently, briefly asking her pardon when he had done.

"I'm a jackass," he said fervently. "I always knew I was a fool, but I didn't know that I was an idiot! Why, Judy, those d-d pigeons have been sailing all over the ranch, billing and cooing and picking up and toting cholera germs. Any fool can see it now. I might have known something was up when Trevers bought the infernal things. It's as simple as one, two, three. Now this other Jasper, pretending to look for a job, brings on some more of them, so that the disease will spread the faster. Let me get my two hands on him, Judith. For the love of God, lead me to him."

But, instead, she led him to the dozen white pigeons which Carson brought in.

Tripp, all business again, improvised his laboratory, washed the pigeons' feet, made his test, with never another curse to tell of his progress. Judith left him and went into the courtyard, where, in a moment, Carson came to her.

"You better tell 'im what's up," he said sharply. "I know something is. That new guy that come in is turned hard to keep. Just as quick as I grab a shotgun an' go to shooting pigeons he moseys out to the corral an' starts saddling his horse."

"Don't let him go!"

Carson smiled a dry, worthless smile. "Bud is looking out for him right now," he explained. "Don't worry none about his going before we say 'sa. But I want to know what the play is."

Judith told him. Carson shook his head.

"Think of that?" he muttered. "Why, a man that would do a trick like that oughtn't to be let live two seconds. Only," and he wrinkled his brows at her, "where does Poker Face come in? We ain't got no call to suspicion he's in on it."

"You watch him, just the same, Carson. We know that somebody here has been working against us. Some one who turned Shorty loose. Maybe it isn't Poker Face, and maybe it is."

"He plays a crib game like a sport an' a gentleman," muttered Carson. "He beat me seven games out'n nine last night!" And, still with that puzzled frown in his eyes, he went to watch Poker Face and the new man.

To have one of the men for whom he was responsible suspected hurt old Carson sorely. And Poker Face, the man with whom he delighted to play a game of cards—it was almost as though Carson himself had come under suspicion.

"You're going to stick around just a little while, stranger," Bud Lee was saying quietly to a shifty-eyed man in the corral. "Just why, I don't know. Orders, you know."

"Orders he d-d," snarled the newcomer. "I go where I please and when I please."

He set a foot to his stirrups. A lean, muscular hand fell lightly upon his shoulder and he was jerked back promptly. Lee smiled at him. And the shifty-eyed man, though he protested sharply, remained where he was.

A thin, saturnine man whose lips never seemed to move, a man with dead-looking eyes into which no light of emotion ever came, watched them expressionlessly from where he stood with Carson. It was Poker Face.

"No," Poker Face answered, to a sharp question from the persistent Carson.

"Sure, are you?"

"Yes."

At last word came from Judith. Carson and Lee were to bring both of the suspected men to the house. Doc Tripp, wiping his hands on a towel, his sleeves up, bestowed upon the two of them a look of unutterable contempt and hatred.

"You low-lived skunks!" was his greeting to them.

"Easy, Doc," continued Judith from her desk. "That won't get us anywhere. Who are you?" she demanded of the man standing at Lee's side.

"Me?" demanded the man with an assumption of jauntness. "I'm Donley, Dick Donley, that's who I am!"

"When did you get here?"

"About an hour ago."

"What did you come for?"

"Lookin' for a job."

"Did Carson say he hadn't anything for you?"

"No, he didn't. You're askin' a lot of questions, if you want to know," he added with new surliness.

"Then why are you going in such a hurry? Don't you like to see anyone shoot pigeons?"

Donley stared back at her insolently. "Because I didn't fall for the crowd," he retorted bluntly. "An', if you want to know, because I didn't hanker for the job when I found out who was runnin' it."

"Meaning me? A girl? That it?"

"You guessed it."

"Who told you I was running the outfit?" she demanded suddenly, her eyes hard on him. "You must have found that out pretty soon! Who told you?"

Donley hesitated, his eyes running from her to the other faces about him, resting longest upon the expressionless, dead-looking eyes of Poker Face.

"What difference does it make who told me?" he snapped.

"Answer me," she commanded.

"Who told you?"

"Well," said Donley, "he did. Poker Face told me."

"Who told you that his name was Poker Face?" Judith shot the question at him.

Donley moved a scuffling foot back and forth, stirring uneasily. That he was lying, no one there doubted; that he was but a poor liar after all was equally evident.

"You ain't got no call to keep me here," he said at last. "I ain't going to answer questions all day."

"You'll answer my questions if you don't want me to turn you over to Emmet Sawyer in Rocky Bend!" she told him coolly. "How did you know this man was called Poker Face? Did you know him before?"

Donley's eyes went again, furtive and swift, to Poker Face. But so did all other eyes. Poker Face gave no sign.

"Yes," answered Donley, taking refuge at last upon the solid basis of truth.

"Did you know this man?" Judith asked then of Poker Face, turning suddenly on him.

"No," said Poker Face.

Donley, having guessed wrong, flushed and dropped his head. Then he looked up defiantly and with a short, forced laugh.

"Suppose I know him or don't know him," he asked with his old insolence, "whose business is it?"

But Judith was giving her attention to Poker Face now.

"Where did you get that white pigeon you turned loose this morning?" she asked crisply.

"Caught it," was the quiet answer.

"How?"

"With my han's."

"Why?"

"Jus' for fun."

"Did you know that pigeons could carry hog cholera on their feet?"

"No. But I wouldn't have been afraid, not bein' a hawg."

Donley littered. Poker Face looked unconcerned.

"Take that man Donley into the hall," Judith said to Lee. "See if he has got my pigeon feathers sticking to him anywhere, inside his shirt, probably. If you need any help, say so."

"Wouldn't Have Been Afraid, Not Bein' a Hawg!"

Very gravely Bud Lee put a hand on Donley's shoulder.

"Come ahead, stranger," he said quietly.

"You go to 'h—!'!" cried Donley, springing away.

Bud Lee's hand was on him, and though he struggled and cursed and threatened he went with Lee into the hallway. Tripp, watching through the open door, smiled. Donley was on his back, Lee's knees on his chest.

"I'll tell you one thing, stranger," Bud Lee was saying to him softly, as his hand tore open Donley's shirt, "you open your dirty mouth to cuss just once more in Miss Sanford's presence and I'll ruin the looks of your face for you. Now be still, will you?"

"Connect me with the Bagley ranch," Judith directed the Rocky Mountain operator. "That's right, isn't it, Doc?"

"Yes," answered Tripp. "That's the nearest cuss of cholera."

"Hello," said Judith when the connection had been established. "Mr. Bagley? This is Judith Sanford, Blue Lake ranch. I've got a case of hog-cholera here, too. I want some information."

She asked her questions, got her answers. Triumphantly she turned to Tripp.

The Bagley ranch, though a hundred miles away, was the nearest cholera-infected place of which Tripp had any knowledge. Bagley did have a flock of pigeons; a man, a month or so ago, had bought two dozen from him, the man wasn't Trevers. Bagley didn't know who he was. The same man, however, had shown up three days ago and had asked for another half-dozen of the birds. There had been three white pigeons among them. He was a shifty-eyed chap, Bagley said, old brown suit, but with a rattlesnake skin around the crown. That, point for point, spelled Donley.

Lee returned with the shirt which he had ripped from his prisoner's back. Adhering to the inside of it were little, downy feathers and three or four larger feathers from a pigeon's wing.

"I guess he rode mostly at night, at that," concluded Lee. "A great little fat man you must have looked, stranger, with six of those birdies in your shirt."

Donley's face was a violet red. But a glance from Lee shut his mouth for him. Poker Face, still looking on, gave no sign of interest.

"Put him in the grain-house," said Judith, her eyes bright with anger. "And see that he doesn't go Shorty's trail. Poker Face, have you anything to say for yourself?"

"No," answered Poker Face.

"Then," cried Judith hotly, "you can have your time right now! Donley, here, I'll prosecute. He's going to pay for this morning's work. I've got nothing on you. It's up to you to see that I don't get it! And you can tell Shorty for me—yes, and Quinlan, too, and Bayne Trevers, if you like—that I am ready and waiting for your next play! And don't forget that when San Quentin is full there's still room in Folsom."

Judith telephoned Emmet Sawyer that she had a man for him. Lee and Carson conducted an expostulating Donley to the grain-house and jugged him wordlessly. Then Carson put a man on guard at the door, daylight though it was. When all was done he filled his pipe slowly and turned troubled eyes after Poker Face.

"She made a mistake there, though," he said regretfully. "A better cow-hand I never ask to see, Bud. An' you ought to see the game of crib that man plays! Nope, Judy; you're wrong there."

But Bud Lee, the man who did not approve of the sort of woman who did man's work, said with unusual warmth:

"Don't you fool yourself, Carson! She hasn't made one little misplay yet!"

THE RELATION OF ANIMAL DISEASES TO PUBLIC HEALTH

By THOMAS G. HULL

Illinois Department of Public Health "Man is his own worst enemy" in the spread of communicable diseases, but the lower animals are a close second. It is only necessary to cite bubonic plague, a disease of rats, which carried off 25 percent of the world's population not so long ago and which is today costing the United States government large sums of money in preventative measures. Another instance is sleeping sickness, a disease primarily of animals and transmitted by the tsetse fly, which makes certain parts of Africa actually uninhabitable for either white man or native. Some prominence has been given this question lately through the offer of the Germans to give to the world a cure for sleeping sickness in return for certain territory.

But to get nearer home, take our own domestic cow. Tuberculosis is by far the most serious problem, ranging in extent from 2 to 3 percent of the cattle in the southern part of Illinois to a greater percentage of the animals in the intensive dairying districts of the northern part of the state. The hogs that follow the cows may also become infected with bovine tuberculosis and be an incidental source of danger. The chief source of danger is thru milk to children.

In surveys made some years ago in several large cities about 10 percent of milk samples were found infected with tubercle bacilli, and this figure probably holds good today in the average small city of Illinois. Efficiency and compulsory pasteurization has eliminated danger in the larger cities. While 25 percent of tuberculous children formerly were infected with the bovine type of the disease, recently home and gland tuberculosis (evidence of the bovine infection), have been rare occurrences in cities like Chicago. Dr. Lorenz on his last visit to this country cried, "Where is your bone tuberculosis?"

RAISE $1,400 AT DEDICATION OF NORTH PRAIRIE CHURCH

North Prairie M. E. church was dedicated Sunday afternoon, replacing one that was destroyed by fire on Aug. 27, 1923, and the new edifice was packed to the doors for the ceremonies.

A volunteer offering was taken and $1,400 was raised. The church cost $14,000, but is worth much more than that because it was constructed by a contractor who is a member of the congregation and permitted other members to work on the structure. The chairman of the building committee is Frank Schultz. The funds raised by cash and subscription have brought the indebtedness down to $2,000 and the congregation is well pleased with the financial condition of the church.

The Rev. Raymond Sager, who has been pastor of the church for a year or more, has been largely responsible for the rebuilding of the new edifice.

The dedicatory address was delivered by Dr. E. Burns Martin of Kenosha. Others who participated in the dedicatory services were the Rev. Mr. Sager, Hattie Forman, organist, Stephen Junk, violinist, Ragnhild Holmquist Congdon, soprano. Dr. J. H. Odgers, district superintendent, of Chicago, presided at the special services in the morning.

Of Interest to the Farmer

The management of the International Live Stock Exposition is making great preparations for the staging of the quarter-centennial celebration of this world-famous educational institution at the Chicago Union Stock Yards, November 20th to December 6th. From advance indications, this will be the largest gathering of the agricultural interests of America ever brought together and many special occasions will mark this history-making event. Every one interested in any way in the basic industry should make a special effort to attend this great round-up of the agrarian resources of the continent and enjoy a week of pleasure and profit at the metropolis.

In commemoration of the importance of this event, Congress, by special act, has authorized the United States Department of Agriculture to award official medals to all winners of first prizes and championships in the live stock competitions at the coming show. The Department itself will fill an entire exhibit hall with a display of its various lines of activity. President Coolidge and other high government officials are expected to be present during the Exposition.

The International Live Stock Exposition will be "International" in character as well as in name. In addition to the Canadian exhibits and delegations, several foreign countries are expected to be represented. Three famous live stock judges are coming from Great Britain and one from the Argentine to act as arbiters in the various contests among breeders and feeders.

Brilliant evening entertainment will be held each night in the arena, featuring a society horse show and a program of exciting and entertaining events. There will be something of interest and value during the International for every member of the family, both urban and rural dwellers. Reduced railroad rates will be in effect during the week of the show.

Vitamines were discovered in 1911 by Dr. McCollum. There were three kinds found and Dr. McCollum called them vitamins "A", "B", and "C". Vitamin "A" is found in milk and has been found to stimulate growth. Vitamin "B" is found mostly in cereals and prevents a disease known as Berry-Berry prevalent amongst the Japanese people. Vitamin "C" is found in fruits such as oranges and lemons. It prevents scurvy and other skin diseases. All of these are found in milk, but "A" is the most prominent.

While at The National Dairy Exposition I saw several cages containing white rats. I was told that the rats were all of the same age. In the first cage were some scrawny rats that were fed on bread made with water. They weighed 90 grams each. The rats in the next cage were somewhat larger. They were fed on bread made with half water and half milk and weighed 130 grams each. The rats in the third cage were fed on bread made with all milk and they received all the fresh milk that they wanted. They weighed 270 grams. This exhibit was the first I ever saw that made me realize the value of milk.

Near the end of the building was a cage containing two dogs. Both dogs received the same number of calories in their feed, but one was fed milk. The dog that received milk weighed 2 lbs., more and was more active. This experiment demonstrated that something in the milk was stimulating growth and health in the animal.

Near the dogs was a cage containing two chickens. The one fed milk was larger and well feathered out. The other was small, less active, and not feathered out so well.

In the study of vitamins the following selection is brought to my mind:

Hidden away abundantly in the myriad atoms of milk, they discover in vitamins the unseen builders of health and strength and beauty, and lengthened life. They proclaim to the world the now accepted truth.

WAR AGAINST T. B. CATTLE

IN COUNTY IS WINNING

The campaign against tubercular cattle in Lake county as well as elsewhere in Illinois, is making fine headway, according to H. H. Petersoo, director of the eradication of bovine tuberculosis of the Illinois agricultural association. The average per cent of cows that react to the tuberculosis test among purebred cattle has been reduced from 9.00 per cent on July 1, 1921, to 5.4 per cent on July 1, 1924, a reduction of 4.05 per cent of the number of reactors in three years, statistics compiled by Peterson show.

The average per cent of infection among grade cattle on July 1, 1924, was 9.1 per cent compared to be 5.4 per cent figure for purebred cattle. This difference of 3.7 per cent is due to the fact that until July 1, 1921, no organized action was taken toward testing grade cattle, while purebreds had been tested for the three year period to this.

In Lake county the campaign has been conducted vigorously and scores perhaps hundreds of cattle have been condemned and sent to Chicago where they have been killed. Many Lake county farmers have lost large sums of money because the money they have received from the government and the state has not compensated them for the loss of their cattle.

Violators of the Government regulations controlling the interstate movement of livestock were fined a total of $3,180 during August, according to a recent report of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In several of the cases the offenses charged was failure to have cattle tuberculin tested before moving them from one state to another. For this cause penalties amounting to $800 were imposed.

Other violations for which offenders were fined were: Failure to provide proper feed and rest after 28 hours of continuous confinement in shipment; not properly designating cattle being shipped from the tick-infested regions of the south; driving cattle interstate without such inspection, dipping, and testing as is required; and shipping a dead animal in the same car with live animals.

New Words as Used

Jack was home for his holidays from college. One day he said to his mother: "May I tell you a narrative, mother?" The mother, not being used to hearing such big words, said, "What is a narrative, my boy?" "A narrative is a tale," said Jack. "That night, when going to bed, Jack said, 'May I extinguish the light, mother?'" His mother asked, "What do you mean by saying extinguish?" "Extinguish means put out," said Jack. A few days later Jack's mother was giving a party at their home, and the dog walked in. Jack's mother raised her voice and said: "Jack, take that dog by the narrative and extinguish him."

Three trucks loads of scrub dairy cattle owned by negro farmers of Coosa and Elmore Counties, Ala., were recently sent to be exchanged as butcher stock for heifers and young bulls of good dairy type by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute of Alabama, in accordance with an offer of that institution. Interest in family cows of better quality has been stimulated by the work of the local agricultural extension agent, through whose efforts negro farmers in different parts of the two countries have acquired dairy animals of better type and are demonstrating to their neighbors the economic advantage of using improved stock. Nine heifers and bulls of excellent dairy type were obtained in the recent exchange, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Game & Fish News

By C. F. Mansfield Jr.
Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

The election is over. The results show that the sportsmen need have no fear that their program of conservation will be neglected. Governor Small has pledged himself to do all in his power to aid the organized sportsmen in their laudable efforts to increase our supply of game, fish and all wild life.

But we must not stop here. Even as we tramp the fields enjoying our sport we should be thinking of the future. Learn where the birds stay, leave enough for seed and arrange with the farmer to put out feed for them this winter when the snow is deep and natural food is scarce.

No doubt the next General Assembly will make appropriations for the purchase of as many refuges as the receipts from hunting licenses will permit. Look over your hunting grounds for a suitable location for one of these preserves. Protection from hawks, owls and predatory animals, and a plentiful supply of food and water, are the essentials for a satisfactory game refuge. When you have found such a spot of not less than twenty to fifty acres write to the Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen who will communicate with the proper authorities.

The present Game Code was written by sportsmen for sportsmen. It is your law. Obey it to the letter and see that every other hunter obeys it also. We want to make Illinois the leading State in the rank of sport and sportsmanship and we can do it if every man will do his part.

WELL SATISFIED WITH WISCONSIN CATTLE

A number of carloads of cows have been bought by farmers direct from Barron and neighboring counties, Wisconsin, recently especially by those in the neighborhood of Waukegan who have been doing a lot of T. B. testing. This is the section that the Farm Bureau has recommended for farmers to buy clean cattle from. Every one returning from there is well pleased with the treatment received by the authorities in those counties, as well as with the cattle obtained and the prices paid. It pays to go to areas that are practically clean of tuberculosis, and that are out of the Chicago and Milwaukee milk districts where cattle are priced higher. It will not be long until Lake county should be selling and producing a large part of the local supply of cattle that will stand up under the T. B. test. Farmers going to Barron county are taken around to see the cattle to pick from without charge by the breed associations there.

All the territory supplying milk to Waukegan and Zion is now tested, and no milk is coming into these towns except from T. B. tested herds. How soon will the rest of Lake county follow suit?

About 3500 head of cattle were tested there the past four weeks. Dr. Crinnell has had the help of as high as four federal men in this campaign.

DAIRMEN TO MEET

AT CARBONDALE

The Illinois Dairymen's Association will hold its 51st annual convention at Carbondale on January 20, 21 and 22, according to announcement made to the press by Stillman J. Stanard, vice-president of the State Dairymen's association, and superintendent of dairy husbandry, state of Illinois.

The first day will be devoted to a cattle show in the Southern Illinois State Normal pavilion and a contest in cattle judging between the agricultural students of Southern Illinois school will be an interesting feature. Attractive premiums are offered and much interest is already being shown in both the cattle judging and the cattle show.

The night of the first day will be given to a lecture by a dairy authority of national reputation. Lectures on timely dairy topics will be the features of the programs on January 21 and 22. These will be held in the Southern Illinois Normal auditorium.

One of the outstanding events of the entire convention will be the annual banquet the night of January 21, at which time farmers, business men and commercial concern representatives will meet for a good time around the banquet table. It is expected that the dairy farmers and dairy enthusiasts of all Egypt, as well as many from upstate will gather at this meeting.

"BEGGAR ON HORSEBACK"

CLOSES ENGAGEMENT NOV. 29

Winthrop Ames' superb production of "Beggar on Horseback" comes to a close at the Adelphi theatre, Chicago, Saturday, November 29. The signing of contracts pledging the show to an opening in Philadelphia on December 1st, makes this closing imperative.

Such has been the success of the engagement, it could easily be extended another six months. Never in the history of Chicago theatricals has the fantastic, satirical farce been approximated in its drawing qualities. Patronage has come largely from the surrounding country and those living outside of Chicago are urged to attend this performance before Nov. 29.

Hard Problem

An American in dear old London was bragging about his automobile. He ended his eulogy by declaring:

"It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it, so quietly you can't hear it, has such perfect ignition you can't smell it, and as for speed—boy you can't see it."

"But, my word, old dear," interrupted the Briton, anxiously, "how do you know the badly thing is there?"

Now for a "Clean Up!"

Folks, want you to meet "Ma" Ferguson, the governor—or should it be the "governess"—of Texas! The (Nov. 4) election saw her attain that high office—and she is the first woman to gain the title of governor in the United States.

Mrs. Ferguson is just a plain, everyday housewife and mother but one who, it is said, has a keen sense of diplomacy yet a determination and initiative that is never daunted. Everybody in Texas believes she will rule the state with equal justice to all and with malice toward none. This picture shows her already to start "cleaning house"—politically.

HUTCHINS SALE SHOWS DEMAND FOR PURE BRED

The auction sale held at the Leslie Hutchings farm last Thursday at Lake Villa, showed a distinct demand for pure bred cattle in this section. The average per cow was $170.00, some selling from $200.00 to $247.50. Inasmuch as none of the cows were fresh or close springers, this is considered a very good average.

All told there were 45 head sold, including 23 calves and yearlings that sold for more than $5,000. Farm produce sold high. Barley bringing $1.05½ and oats 59 cents a bushel. A large crowd was present and a nice day enjoyed. George White was in the box and L. J. Slocum did the selling.

WEDDING 800 YEARS AGO

MUCH AS TODAY

In Douglas Fairbanks' new screen sensation, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," a United Artists release, coming to the Crystal theatre next Sunday and Monday, a royal wedding takes place. In order that it might conform, in every detail, to the customs in vogue during the Twelfth Century, the period in which Robin Hood lived, a careful research was made, and this brought to light many facts that may interest the present-day bride and groom.

In those days, wheat was used to throw after the bridal couple, a symbol for wishing that the happy pair might "prosper and multiply," and the present day use of rice for that purpose grew out of that custom. Another interesting custom, especially to the women, is the throwing of old shoes. Eight hundred years ago, instead of everybody taking a hand in hurling worn-out footwear at the departing couple, the father of the bride presented to the bridegroom a brand new shoe, which meant that he there-with transferred to the husband all authority over the daughter. Perhaps in these days that wouldn't mean much. The bridegroom thenceforth had every right to take his newly-made spouse over his knee and administer a spanking if he thought she needed it. It was then great fun to watch the bride try to gain possession of the shoe to show that she might be the "boss" of the new family.

Instead of as today, after the wedding trying to keep the husband away from his bride, they worked on an entirely opposite theory. They would try to infer that the bride did not wish to go with her newly-made husband and would attempt to force them into each other's arms.

Outside of these few things the wedding was carried out much as it is today.

Number of heifers 1 to 2 years old compared to the total number of cows in this district seem to be below the average, indicating the intention to bring less young stock into milk in the near future.

In citing these figures the Institute calls attention to the fact that the United States needs 320,000 more cows every year if production is to keep step with the normal growth of demand for dairy products. There are 1,412,000 more months to be fed in the United States with every year's year and with the increased consumption of dairy products per capita, this added number to the nation's herd will barely suffice to meet the increased demand.

Julius E. Schoenke, 903 Belvidere street, Wankegan Saturday saved the lives of two Chicago hunters. The Chicago men, whose names were not learned, were out in a boat at Sullivan lake near Volo and in reaching out to get ducks that had been shot, fell into the water. The water was thickly imbedded with weeds at that point and the men became entangled in weeds and mud and could not move.

Schoenke, who was out duck hunting at the lake, heard the cries of the men in distress. He ran to the scene and without hesitating threw off part of his clothing and rowed out to the men.

According to reports the Wankegan fireman pulled the Chicagoans into his boat and rowed to shore. He rendered first aid and then took the men to the office of a physician at Volo as they were suffering considerably from shock and exposure.

One of the men is said to have been buried nearly up to his neck in mud, it being little short of a miracle that Schoenke succeeded in extricating him and getting him into the boat. The Chicago hunters lost guns valued at $145 each and six boxes of shells.

Marvino Bellow of Wankegan assisted Schoenke in rescue. It was learned later that one of the men rescued was a Chicago physician, Dr. Stevens, of Michigan avenue.

Dashing back into a flaming auto truck to save her pocketbook, after she had rescued her two children from the blaze, east the life of Mrs. Peter Gemdrick of Fox Lake, Friday night near Pontiac, Ill.

She was fatally burned and died in the Pontiac hospital shortly afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Gemdrick, with the latter's sister, Miss Ada Gerretson, and the two Gemdrick children, 6 and 8, started a tour last week in the truck, equipped for camping.

At the time of the accident Mr. Gemdrick, a Fox Lake garage owner, was out hunting. Mrs. Gemdrick was preparing a meal on a gasoline stove placed inside the truck.

It is believed the stove leaked. Flames burst out and enveloped the top of the truck. Mrs. Gemdrick dashed in and bore her two children to safety.

Then she remembered that her pocketbook was in the flaming truck. She leaped in, her clothing caught fire, and she was a mass of flames before her sister could beat her out.

A motorist hurried the woman to the Pontiac hospital. She died there within a short time. The sister incurred severe burns due to her efforts to save the mother.

L. J. SLOCUM SELLS HIS 230-ACRE FARM

L. J. Slocum of Wadsworth sold his 230-acre farm last week. Robt. Erskine was the broker, and Richard Makl of Wankegan, the purchaser. The consideration is reported as $55,000. Mr. Slocum expects to devote more time to auctioneer and real estate. He has not yet fully decided where to make his home.

THE WOMAN OF KNOCKALOE

This story of the "Isle of Man" by Hall Caine, a Manxman, has a breath of reality in its tragedy which could only come from a great artist. And Hall Caine has proved his worth already to many appreciative students of human nature in his earlier works, "The Christian," "The Prodigal Son," "The Woman Thou Gavest me," and other books. You will be compelled to live with his characters, and see the scenes he describes. "When I saw some views of the places mentioned in the book, which are in the possession of Mr. William Kelly, one of our Manxmen. It was like recognizing well known places," says the Rev. E. Lester Stanton. This drama of the world war is to be presented at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday night at 7:30, by the pastor. If you are in love with love, you will want to be there.

DEPUTY SHERIFF WEALE IS BACK ON THE JOB

Deputy Sheriff Delbert A. Weale, who has been on a "vacation" for ten days, was back on the job at the sheriff's office today. It was rumored that there was friction between him and Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom, and that he had been laid off, but his return disproved the report.

ALL SET

The prisoner was not professionally represented. Before proceeding with the case, the judge said:

"This is a very serious offense you are charged with. If you are convicted it means a long term of imprisonment. Have you no counsel to look after your defense?"

The prisoner in the most confidential manner leaned toward the judge and replied:

"No, your honor, I have no counsel; but I have some very good friends on the jury."

"Peony Nails"

The term penny in connection with nails is always used in combination with prefixed numerals, such as four-penny, ten-penny, etc., to form an adjective. These adjectives now denote certain arbitrary sizes. Originally, they denoted the price per hundred of nails.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On How Not to Make Out Checks

"The most annoying thing has happened, Aunt Emmy," exclaimed Helen. "I sent a check for $5 to the hospital to help them in their drive and some one cashed it. Isn't it a shame, for I simply can't afford to send another." "I don't see how that could happen," said Aunt Emmy. "If you made out the check properly." "Why, of course, I did," Helen said. "I made it out just as I always do, to 'bearer'." Aunt Emmy laughed. "No wonder you lost it!" she said. "Any one at all could cash a check made out like that. It's very careless of you to do it, no matter to whom the check is given. It would only take a few seconds to write the name of the payee properly. A check made out to 'bearer' may be cashed by any one who gets it. It is regrettable but true that not every one is honest. You know that lots of people would take a five dollar bill if they happened to find it. A check made payable to bearer or to 'cash' is just as tempting to them as a five dollar bill would be."

"But, Aunt, it was so frightfully mean to steal from the hospital!"

"You invited this particular theft by neglecting to make your check out properly," Aunt Emmy admonished Helen. "You may be glad your loss is no greater. Even when you go to the bank for money yourself you should not make your check payable to cash. Suppose you should lose it on the way? The same thing that happened to the hospital check might happen to it. Better take an extra minute and make the check out to yourself, sign your name to it as usual and endorse it just as though it were one you received from someone else."

"That seems like a lot of times to sign your own name on one little check, doesn't it, Aunt?" objected Helen.

"It's ever so much better to be on the safe side than to lose your money through carelessness," retorted Aunt Emmy. —Anno B. Aymes.

HUNTERS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OPEN SEASON

A large number of hunters took advantage of the start of the hunting season: the past week to tramp the fields with their twining pieces. Game was reported plentiful, but trespassers were still more plentiful. The sheriff's office has received numerous calls that hunters were damaging farmer's property and hunting without permits.
